

50 PULLMANS WILL BE USED AT OLYMPICS

Cars Parked in Local Yards to Help House Huge Throng of Visitors

Following a conference of Dr. Godfrey Dewey, president of the Third Olympic Winter Games committee, and Ernest Gamache, secretary, with railroad officials in New York city it was decided to use Pullman cars in the local yards to house some of the guests at the Third Olympic Winter Games of 1932 at this resort.

Representatives of the New York Central, the Delaware & Hudson company, and the Pullman company met with Dr. Dewey and Mr. Gamache and went over the Pullman housing matter in great detail.

It was pointed out by traffic officials that 110 Pullmans could be used for Olympic housing purposes, but this would entail a heavy expense.

At a meeting of the local Olympic committee last Saturday, it was decided that the cost for the full complement of Pullmans would be excessive, but it was voted to have the Pullman company provide at least 50 Pullman cars, which will be in the local railroad yards during the ten days of the games and will be used for housing visitors.

1,000 Can Be Housed
Each car will take care of 20 people. 50 cars, therefore, will house 1,000 guests. This plan will assist Lake Placid materially in taking care of the thousands who will come to this resort during the international games.

A preliminary study of the local railroad yards has already been undertaken. A certain amount of additional trackage will need to be laid, but plans for doing this are understood to have been approved by the D. & H. company. The Pullmans, while here, will be heated by stationary engines in the yards.

Show Co-operative Spirit
Railroads and traffic officials of the Pullman company, it was stated by Secretary Gamache, have shown the utmost willingness to co-operate with local Olympic officials in planning for the housing of Olympic visitors.

The New York Central Lines have voted a big reduction in fares for European competitors coming from New York to Lake Placid by rail, it was learned this week. The reduction is said to be comparable to that offered by trans-continental lines that will transport competitors to the Los Angeles summer games in 1932.

All trans-Atlantic steamship lines, Secretary Gamache states, will give a 20 per cent reduction from off-season rates to all European Olympic competitors.

In the matter of housing Lake Placid Olympic visitors it is further pointed out that Montreal can take care of at least 2,000. Railroads will operate on special schedules to and from the Dominion metropolis so that many visitors to the games can, if they wish, make their headquarters in Montreal. Just how far the plan will be carried out is not known as yet.

CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

Save the Wild Flowers

It has been the custom of thousands of tourists, vacationists, picnickers and outdoor enthusiasts to pick a large quantity of wild flowers every summer. Small trees, plants and bulbs have been taken from the fields and woodlands in alarming numbers, some of which were successfully used to beautify private property, but the largest percentage, unfortunately, finally wound up in the family ash can or garbage collector's wagon.

The protection of America's wild flowers is a very important phase of conservation. Some states have already inaugurated laws which govern the picking of various species of wild flowers and other woodland plant life.

P. L. Ricker, president of the Wild Flower Preservation society, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., says: "It is generally thought that wild flowers can be protected the same as game and birds, by legislation. However, birds and game are considered the property of the state while all plants are considered the personal property of the land owner, who cannot be forbidden to sell these plants no matter how rare, nor from delegating the right to another as this would be in violation of one of the amendments to the constitution of the United States.

Practically no state laws for the protection of wild flowers have had any appreciable effect as there is no way of enforcing them unless the property owners co-operate by getting out warrants for arrest of offenders, and one can easily appreciate how much difficulty would be encountered in executing such a program generally.

"In a very few places a sufficient amount of sentiment has been aroused so that local property owners have had quite a number of arrests made. West Virginia has a law protecting wild flowers. The principal reason for the passing of such a law in this state is that it is a very small state and every one desiring a rhododendron plant for their grounds will drive into the state, dig up one or more plants and drive away. It's a plain case of theft and no special laws are required to punish the offender if the owner cares to prosecute."

Shadows in Open Brooks

In open brooks trout are wary. They have no cover under which to hide. Hence they are constantly alert for the shadow which may mean, fish hawk, mink or otter.

They will assuredly be suspicious of your shadow. Why not? It's much larger than that of a hawk or an otter. Moral: Don't let the trout see your shadow. Fish into the sun, or across it. Stand well back from the banks. It will make a difference.

By the way, early season trout fishing necessitates that the angler have a good pair of light hip rubber boots. Be sure to look into this so that the first day will not mean wet, uncomfortable feet. Incidentally, a good pair of rubber boots will oftentimes put the fisherman in the best position to take some good trout.

Use of various natural waters for the cure of disease has been in vogue from the earliest times.
