Freeman Delays Price Hike In 70 Milk Markets WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman delayed today a decision on a plan to increase producer prices of bottling milk sold in 70 major milk marketing areas in the country.

A department proposal to raise these prices around 20 cents a hundred pounds - equivalent of about a half-cent a quart - was laid before Freeman Friday after his return from a series of Midwestern farm meetings. He heard much farmer criticism of government farm policies and producer complaints about low farm prices.

At four regional hearings last week, dairy leaders called for an increase of 40 cents in these 70 marketing areas, or twice the amount department dairy experts had recommended to the secretary.

The 70 are regulated under federal milk marketing orders which set minimum prices handlers are required to pay dairymen. The only region not covered is the Pacific Coast, where state orders are employed to stabilize dairy prices.

Any department action to raise producer prices would in itself affect retail prices, which are not subject to federal regulation. But a producer price increase could be expected to be reflected in corresponding increases in retail prices.

Producer milk prices have been subject to much farm area agitation recently, including a milk withholding action by the National Farmers Organization (NFO) to force handlers to raise prices.

Dairy leaders say increasing production costs, labor shortages and other economic factors make price increases necessary if production is to meet consumer needs.

Born Jan. 28 1898 in St. DeLuce, Canada, he had lived in Brattleboro for the past 19 years. Prior to that he lived for some years in Montague.

He was employed as a sander for several years at Templeton Co. and was a member of the Red Men of Brattleboro.

He leaves his widow, the former Ruth Macle; three sons, Everett of East Northfield and Rene and Charles, both of East Deerfield; five daughters, Mrs. Pearl Webber of Montague, Mrs. Doris Baird of Easthampton, Mrs. Elaine Nadeau of Pittsfield, Mrs. Gloriam Wickline of Turners Falls and Mrs. Julie Berube of North Carolina; two brothers, John of Greenville, N. H., and Leon of Winchendon; four sisters, Mrs. Lydia Couture and Mrs. Delina Goulette, both of Winchendon, Mrs. Alice LaFortune of Worcester and Mrs. Alfreda Gamache of Washington, D. C.; 28 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

STALIN'S DAUGHTER ARRIVES - Mrs. Svetlana Alluyeva, only daughter of the late Russian dictator, Josef Stalin, speaks to newsmen at New York yesterday after arriving in the United States. - AP Wirephoto.

member to take the ashes of British Singh, the man described by the Soviet government as her husband, to India. "I fully expected to return to Russia within one month's time," she wrote. "However, during my stay in India I decided that I could not return to Moscow."

Already here when she arrived from Zurich, Switzerland was the manuscript of an 80,000-word autobiography written in 1963 which has been turned over to Harper & Row for publication Oct. 16.

Svetlana was the last of the passengers to disembark from a jetliner at Kennedy Airport. She fairly bounced down the steps. In a written statement she said she left Moscow last December to take the ashes of British Singh, the man described by the Soviet government as her husband, to India.

"I fully expected to return to Russia within one month's time," she wrote. "However, during my stay in India I decided that I could not return to Moscow."

"It was my own decision, based on my own feelings and experiences, without anyone's advice or help or instruction. "In recent years, we in Russia have begun to think, to discuss, to argue, and we are not so much automatically devoted any more to the ideas which we were taught."

Week In Business-

Seven Arts Productions offered to buy Warners Bros. Pictures for more than $66 million and Indian Head, managed to acquire Bear-Nester Glass Co. for an exchange of stock or cash payment that could exceed $35 million.

Hunt Foods, headed by financier Norton Simon, agreed to sell to Pittsburgh Steel some of its Wheeling steel holdings.

The Federal Reserve Board denied Allied Bankshares authority to acquire control of two of Virginia's largest banks, Virginia National Bank of Norfolk and the Central National Bank of Richmond.

Trouble-plagued American Motors said it would suspend production of its bigger Rebel and Ambassador cars for two weeks, and double the output of its compact Rambler American within 30 days - reflecting sales increases for the smaller car since prices were cut in February.

The stock market, however, took the news in its stride and rose.

There were these other business developments during the week: McDonnell Co. and the financially troubled Douglas Aircraft agreed to merge, becoming McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

Gen. Gregorios Spandidakis, army chief of staff, was named vice premier and defense minister and appeared to be the strongman in the new government.

Papandreou was reported among the politicians arrested and an Italian news agency said he had suffered a heart attack. Others said to have been detained included his son, Andreas; Premier Panayiotis Kanellopoulos, who had been in office only 18 days, and leaders of all parties.

The coup followed two years of mounting political turbulence during which King Constantine fired the elder Papandreou as premier in a showdown over control of the armed forces. The coup brought Greece to its gravest crisis since a Communist rebellion was defeated in 1947-49 with American help.

Tough Problems Go Before UN's General Assembly

BY WILLIAM N. OATIS UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - Delegates to the U.N. General Assembly's special session expressed private doubts today that agreement will be reached on the two issues at stake.

South-West Africa's future and U.N. peacekeeping finances.

The 122-nation assembly is supposed to carry through the decision of the last regular session to terminate South Africa's League of Nations mandate over South-West Africa and bring it under U.N. auspices.

The session also inherited the nagging problem of peacekeeping, stated by Soviet insistence that only the Security Council has the right to authorize and finance such operations.

The United States and other nations insist that the General Assembly shares that authority, particularly when council action is blocked by a veto.

Assembly president Abdul Rahman Pazhwak opened the special session Friday with a warning that delegates must deal with "problems of crucial importance - problems of justice and problems of peace," that are "highly complex."

The session is expected to last for three or four weeks.

Msgr. Schmitz said the only solution acceptable to the faculty would be for the board to rescind its order terminating Father Curran's contract when it expires Aug. 31 and to reinstate him as an assistant professor of theology.

Asked if he didn't think the terms left the board little room to maneuver, he replied, "They handed us an ultimatum, now we're handing it back."

The 600-member faculty voted overwhelmingly to strike Thursday in protest against the dismissal of their colleague.

Father Curran has said his liberal views, which include abolition of the traditional church ban against use of contraceptives for birth control, apparently led to his ouster.

The 600-member student body began boycotting classes Wednesday after the faculty and students of the theology school voted to stay away from classrooms.

Since then the students have demonstrated at rallies and participated in a protest vigil in front of the university's administration building. The demonstrations and vigil were to continue today.

There were indications members of the board were communicating with one another but no official announcement was made.

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said today West Germany "is ready solemnly to promise to give up the use of force against anyone."

"Our foreign policy is in fact directed against nobody. We are not chronically seeking a place in the sun that can only too easily become a place in the fire," he said in remarks for a Christian Democratic party meeting.

His party's four guidelines for foreign policy, Brandt said, are lessening of tensions, organization of European cooperation, normalization of relations with Germany's eastern neighbors and "renunciation of nuclear weapons, making sure that the treaty to halt their spread does not prejudice the peaceful interests of our industrial state."

Chief Judge Charles E. Wyanski Jr. administered the oath Friday in a federal courtroom in front of a large crowd including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who sponsored Murray for the post.

Murray, a Massachusetts Superior Court judge for 21 years, succeeds the Judge George C. Sweeney who died last November.
