bank officials said security and insurance problems would prevent its special opening on the holiday, a defense spokesman said.

The apartments to be viewed are now occupied by other tenants. Bailey had requested that the jurors see the apartments to help them understand "the enormity of six to eight weeks confinement under those conditions."

Miss Hearst, captured last Sept. 18, was the star witness Friday, taking the stand for three hours after the prosecution rested its case. She will resume her testimony Tuesday.

In a voice choked with emotion and a face streaked with tears, she told the jurors she had recalled another kidnap victim who was buried alive and that she feared the closet would be her tomb.

After her captors assured their blindfolded hostage that she was not going to be buried, she said she felt a carpeted wall and a foam-rubber floor, but could not remember anything else except that her cheek was stinging. Miss Hearst said she had been struck with a rifle butt hours earlier during her kidnap.

After two hours in darkness, she said, the door was opened and she heard the voice of SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze.

Jane E. Clarke

BERNARDSTON — Jane Evelyn (Hale) Clarke, 89, of Miami, Fla., native of Bernardston, died Feb. 6 in Miami.

She was born in Bernardston, July 7, 1887, the daughter of Edwin Burrows and Nellie (Read) Hale. She was the last Hale descendant. Her father was prominent in local and county public affairs for more than 40 years.

She was a graduate of Powers Institute, and studied education and public speaking and appeared on the stage and lecture circuit for several years. In 1920, she married Roscoe J. Clarke of Denver, Colo., living there until her husband's death in 1930. While in Denver, she was manager of the silverware department of Daniels and Fisher Store.

Returning to Massachusetts, she was connected for many years in wholesale stationary, paper and assorted gift items. In 1957 she moved to Miami and made her home with her niece, Mrs. Jeanne Thompson Hampton.

Besides her niece, she leaves four nephews, Col. John E. Sutherland, of Silver Spring, Md., Fred H. Sutherland of Dearborn, Mich., Alec F. Sutherland of West Springfield and Richard S. Wilcox of Boothbay Harbor, Me.

Interment will be at the Hale family plot, Center Cemetery, Bernardston, in April.

primary. But he conceded the Florida primary to Wallace.

Time magazine reported that a nationwide poll shows Americans, by a margin of 55 to 31, would prefer to see a Democrat elected president. But the poll also found that Ford was rated as the most acceptable candidate by 58 per cent of the 1,002 persons surveyed.

In Mississippi's county conventions, the second step in the Democratic delegate-selection process, Wallace held a continuing lead of nearly half the votes from earlier precinct caucuses. The second largest group was uncommitted, while former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sargent Shriver were running third and fourth, respectively.

At the AFL-CIO convention in Miami, leaders of the construction unions Sunday dropped plans to campaign against President Ford in retaliation for his veto of the "common site" picketing bill. The building trades, the conservative wing of the labor movement that backed Richard Nixon in 1972, decided that Reagan was equally unacceptable as an alternative to Ford.

William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union Leader, said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that New Hampshire's primary remains a "horse race." But Gov. Meldrim Thomson repeated his prediction that Reagan will win with 55 per cent of the vote. Both men support the Reagan candidacy.

While campaigning in Florida on Saturday, Ford urged the use of the death penalty in federal cases involving sabotage, murder, espionage and treason.

Charles Snider, Wallace's campaign chief, said the governor doesn't see that his partial paralysis below the waist should keep him from running for national office.

"He knows many politicians in Washington who are paralyzed from the waist up," said Snider.
