Jaycees program might infringe on their own glass supply, but, as Oliveira said, there are certainly enough bottles in town to keep both organizations busy.

THE INTENT OF THE group's project is to keep the environment, and the town dump, free of unwanted bottles, and to make a profit, too.

Student officers and members of the Save Old Bottles company are:

Wayne Gowdy, president; Frank Sanacaterra, vice president of production; Charlotte Lipton, treasurer; Carol Sedlick, secretary; Sandra Clark, personnel director; and Richard Dorman, David Waleryszak, Kathy Fitzgerald, Heather Grady, Geraldine Lees, and Bruce Lockyer.

the bug, the center was staffed by substitutes and volunteers.

Because the teachers were out sick, there was also no way to provide transportation to the high school, since the center's mini-bus is used for senior citizens Friday afternoons.

For today's party, Miss Karkos said, the children will be driven to Fermi and Santa in the new bus.

The party and visit by Santa was to be held this afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m.

going to change the environment overnight with laws, they are mistaken."

NOTING THAT he uses Interstate 91 every day when he travels back and forth to the legislature, Vella explained:

"I'd hate to abolish the Highway Fund and cut off revenue for the widening of this highway next year. The state has plans to alleviate the horrible congestion on I-91, but the remedy is going to cost money and the state's share of this money will come from the Highway Fund."

The CREAC wants to stop building urban area highways and shift the emphasis in solving traffic congestion and commuter problems to the development of mass transit systems.

Vella was not a member of the House when the abortion law reforms were proposed.
